Employees can enjoy a wide range of services, discounts, health and wellness benefits, as well as points for creative expression through the following UT Southwestern Medical Center programs. The Career Development Program's Career Development Program helps employees work better in their current positions and gain the skills to qualify for promotional opportunities. Offers include individual career advice, career planning and job search strategies. UT Southwestern's Employee Assistance Program (EAP) is designed to help employees who may be dealing with personal issues that affect their relationships at home and at work. EAP provides a limited number of private, confidential consultations with professional staff (Master and above) for employees and eligible family members. Faculty discount staff, staff and students can receive discounts from local and national suppliers. Cell phone, entertainment, health and wellness, housing, goods, services and food suppliers are current participants. Learn how to become a participating supplier. The Employee Recovery Program is designed to improve personal well-being and work-life balance. The goal is to enable employees, retirees and dependents to take responsibility for their health and develop their own personal recovery program by providing a variety of programs, tools and resources, including weight management programs, health fairs, and culinary demonstrations. At my Own Time Art Competition, the annual show, designed to showcase the talents of UT members of the Southwest Community, is part of a regional effort being held by the North Texas Business Council for the Arts. Training Benefits Program full-time employees who have completed 12 months of work with UT Southwestern and are in good position are entitled to $2,000 in reimbursement for tuition fees for courses taken from a regional college or university.
